Text 1

Once upon a time, in the coastal town of Aberystwyth, a group of friends discovered an ancient map hidden inside an old book. The map promised the location of a lost treasure buried deep within the cliffs. Excited by the adventure, Ella, James, and Sarah set out to find the treasure.

As they followed the map, they faced several challenges. First, they had to cross a rickety old bridge that swayed in the wind. Next, they climbed steep rocks, careful to avoid slippery patches. Finally, they reached a cave that echoed with the sound of waves crashing outside. Inside the cave, they found a chest covered in seaweed and sand.

With shaking hands, they opened the chest and found it filled with gold coins and sparkling jewels! They decided to share their treasure with the local community, ensuring the adventure would always be remembered.

In a small village nestled between green hills, there stood an ancient oak tree. Its branches stretched wide, providing shade and shelter to all who came near. The villagers believed the tree held a special secret, passed down through generations.

One sunny afternoon, a curious girl named Elin decided to explore the tree. As she touched its rough bark, she felt a surge of energy. Suddenly, a tiny door appeared at the base of the trunk. Heart pounding, Elin opened the door and discovered a hidden room filled with shimmering light and sparkling treasures.

Inside, she met an old spirit who revealed the tree's secret: it could grant one wish each year. Elin had never dreamed of such magic. After a moment's thought, she wished for happiness for all her village. When she stepped out, she could already hear laughter and joy echoing through the streets. The old oak tree had shared its secret, and Elin had changed her village forever.
