

WAGOLL: Debate Writing

Today I am going to be debating whether outdoor learning is a positive thing or a negative thing. Some people think that learning inside is the best way to learn, but I think that learning outdoors can be a positive thing too. Let me tell you what I think is positive about outdoor learning and what I think is negative about outdoor learning.

In my opinion, outdoor learning can be exciting and fun for children. It gives us the chance to take learning in the classroom, into a different setting. When we do outdoor learning, we can learn things about our local area, about nature and we get to see some creatures too!

I think I learn more when we learn outside because we take our normal classroom learning to a different place, making the learning engaging and exciting. Outdoor learning also helps me to concentrate more on my work, I enjoy listening to nature and looking at the beautiful world around me. We can also take our i pads outside to help us with our learning.

Although I do enjoy outdoor learning, I can also see how some children may not. Some children might find it easier to concentrate on their learning in a classroom instead of moving their learning somewhere else. This may stop some children from concentrating on their learning and they may even get distracted. Sometimes, it can also be cold outside. Some children may not like this either.

I think that in school we should have a mix of indoor and outdoor learning so that every child can learn where is best for them. This will help more children learn and enjoy learning at the same time.
